Introduction

Who are you?

I am a 15-year-old boy from Austria. I am currently in ninth grade and the first year of higher technical college.

I am mostly Austrian, but I know that one of my ancestors came from Hungary through the Aryan certificate of my great-grandfather who fought in the SS.

Why are you writing this manifesto?

I want to share my political opinions to the world. I also want to create this in order to later look back at my earlier political thoughts and compare them to those which I will hold in the future.

I am committing this manifesto to Mark Collett, a person which videos and actions I hugely support. I chose him because I think he is not getting enough attention for the content he produces.

Whom I praise

My two favorite philosophers are Friedrich Nietzsche and Marcus Aurelius.

Writings

On religion

Religion is nothing more than a fictional concept which is being used by people so that they do not have to look for answers to the eternal questions of life themselves. It is wrong and therefore needs to be replaced with truthful concepts such as ethnic nationalism and collectivism.

One of the worst aspects of religion is that it would be a smart idea to commit your whole life just to religion in order to get to heaven and have the best outcome for yourself in the long-term. This is what makes religion so egoistic and dangerous. You only care about getting to heaven and helping your people and your community provide nothing for that goal. That you commit your whole life to something that is simply wrong makes it even worse. Why should your religion, whatever it may be, be the only right one of hundreds of religions? There is no proof for any religion.

Many religions also include concepts that are not only dangerous to yourself, but also dangerous to the society you live in. Fanatic theists such as ISIS go even further and endanger the whole world in the form of terrorism. Those dangerous religious concepts are for example believing in the murder of people who do not believe in your religion. This is the case for Islam. While other religions such as Christianity may only worsen society on a smaller scale, or even better it if their religion includes a majority of good concepts which have nothing to do with religion, it was not always that way. After the fall of the holy roman empire Christians also began with the murder of people who did not believe in their religion and the destruction of sacred sites. Therefore, many pagans had to suffer. It is also the same with Judaism. They had baby-sacrifices and many more dark rituals which badly effected people who had nothing to do with Judaism.

I do not believe in any religion and that is totally fine. You do not need to be religious to be morally superior, ethnic nationalist, pragmatic or civilized.

On the soul

If we define the soul as immaterial, immortal and separable from the body at death, I do not think it exists. The parts of the human that people mean when talking about the soul exist, but they are formed and stored in the brain, and some characteristics of a human are genetic.

On living in a simulation

There are a lot of smart people like Elon Musk who think we probably live in a simulation. Personally, I think we might live in a simulation, but I do not know the changes. But even if we lived in a simulation it would change nothing, because we will never be able to tell, and it would change absolutely nothing. Therefore, I care little about theorizing about living in a simulation.

If you believe that we live in a simulation and therefore think that there is a higher being, an administrator, and you therefore call yourself agnostic, I do not count you as a typical religious person and you therefore have the same respect that I have for atheists, not counting any other aspects than religion.

On my alternative to religion.

In my writing on religion I intentionally wrote that religion needs to be replaced with something, rather than just be destroyed. That is because many religions include good concepts such as morals and a meaning for life. My alternative, which includes all the positive aspects but excludes all the negative ones, combines many ideologies. One of the most important ones is called ethnic fascism.

Let us look at the meaning of live. First of all, I believe that there can be many more meanings for life than just one, I will talk about most important ones. For me, the meanings of live are not the same for everyone. But it certainly they not only based on yourself. We are too small and irrelevant to have an actual meaning just for ourselves. In order for you to make sense of my meanings, you need to think of yourself as a part of your people and your ancestry or at least imagine that you think of yourself as that, otherwise some of my meanings will not make sense to you. But there are still meanings which take only yourself into aspect.

Individualistic meanings are being the best version of yourself and always striving to get better at everything you can better yourself at, passing your genes onto your children, making a permanent or at least long-lasting impact in the world, being happy and many more.

Collectivist meanings are giving birth to your children and raising them to be strong and intelligent beings, fighting for your people and defending it against destruction and subversion and many more.

On work for women

I personally believe that women should not attend traditional work. In a healthy society a women should have many children, I believe around 4 to 6, for many more years before we will automatically have around two, which is because at some point the perfect population for a specific society or landmass will be reached and people will want to maintain that perfect population.

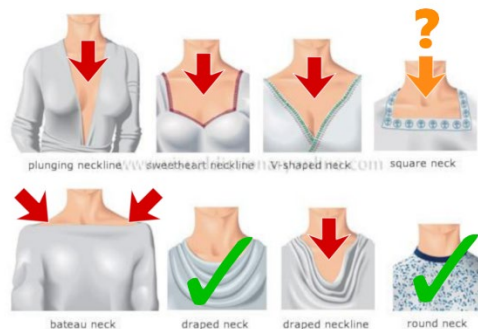

Women should take care of the household and children while men should work to provide for their family. Even if a woman only had 2 children, the work she would have to do with those children and the house would still be enough to justify staying at home, not to mention that men are better at most work.

On how women should dress

A woman should dress so sexually arousing parts of her body are covered. That is the reason I support the idea of the burka, but in a less extreme extent.

Therefore, women should dress in a way that is not revealing shoulders, upper legs, breasts, upper body until neck and anything that is between those segments. I do not think women should need to cover their heads because it is not very sexually appealing to most men. Even if it was, it would be very impractical.

The two images under this text are an example of an appropriately dressed woman and examples of how to dress and how not to dress.

On how many children women should have

I believe the right amount of kids is 3 – 6 for a very long time before we will automatically have around two, which is because at some point the perfect population for a specific society or landmass will be reached and people will want to maintain that perfect population.

On the ideal family

The ideal family should consist of a man and a woman, both the same race. The man should work fulltime, and the woman should stay at home to care about the house and the kids. But the man must also do some of the parenting, for example teaching his kids how to behave in a fight, how to hunt, defend yourself, build and repair tools and other stuff, philosophy and many more.

The family should go out into the wild and not only stay at home. You should not spoil your kids too much because they will not be able to care for themselves once those luxuries may be gone.

On rationalism and empiricism

While emotions should not be hidden, one should always think rational rather than emotional. If you act according to your emotions, you will make wrong decisions. Always take a deep breath and rationally think about something before acting.

But that does not mean that emotions are something bad. In fact, they are what makes us humans and our lives worthy.

On individualism and collectivism

I believe that without collectivism life is meaningless. Yes, I said before that there are meanings for life which only focus on the individual, but I think that just those meanings are not enough to live a good life. Very few people may be able to live only for themselves, but the loneliness which would emerge with that would be too sad for me to enjoy my life.

If you see yourself part of your people and community, your life gets much more meaningful and interesting. The best part of collectivism is that you can feel good about the good things that are happening to your family. Raising children is one of the most fulfilling meanings, if not the most fulfilling meaning, of life.

Societies would collapse if everyone was an individualist which would be bad for everyone. Think about it: Yes, exploiting society for yourself has bad impacts on everyone including yourself, but the pros would most likely outweigh the cons because you as an individual make only an extremely little impact on society. If a society would consist only of people with such mindsets, it would get worse or even collapse.

On the other hand, if you are a collectivist you see yourself as a part of your society, so you are not going to exploit it. If a society would consist only of people with those mindsets, it be healthy and the people in it would be happier than in the other example-society.

On democracy

Real democracy is nothing more than mob-rule, in which the 51% can oppress the other 49%. People will get manipulated and indoctrinated by the media-kikes and vote for the wrong people.

On the other hand, the leaders of a good fascist state will be able to make the right decision without being manipulated, because they are smarter than the general public.

On nationalism

Sadly, the right wing and the third position have adopted nationalism, even though it is a dumb and fundamentally wrong concept. The typical assumption is that nationalism is always good and plays a key role in a healthy society. I am not supportive of this believe and in this time against nationalism. I, an ethnic nationalist, love my people; nationalists love their country. Most people who call themselves nationalists often are not traditional nationalists. There are a lot of Germans, Swedes, Americans, Brits, French, et cetera who are extremely disgusted and disappointed by their governments right now but still call themselves nationalists because they love the culture and achievements of their own people. What they actually are is ethnic nationalists. Nationalism can be good, but not today. The only time to be an actual nationalist is when the state is doing the best it can to help its own people, and with own people I mean the people who are part of the traditional race of the country. If that is the case, traditional nationalism leads to the same as ethnic nationalism and is therefore just as based.

On my alternative to nationalism

What I support instead of nationalism is called "ethnic nationalism". The key difference is that we do not love our country. We love our people, our race.

On fascism

Fascism is the superior political system because it is immune to mob rule and usually includes positive social concepts such as a strong focus on health, loyalty, collectivism, values and many more. But saying that it is just an ideology is very wrong. It is truth and nature.

The only problem with the definition of fascism is that it is not clarified if nationalism or ethnic nationalism applies to the it. Therefore, I call myself an ethnic fascism.

On eco-fascism

The bad thing when talking about eco-fascism is that there is not really a definition for it. But I think most people would say that it somewhere along fascism and environmentalism combined. I care for the environment and I also think that we should embrace nature, but that is already mandatory in a smart fascist society and something almost everyone agrees to, even leftists, although their actions typically make nature worse. Because embracing nature and caring for the environment is already pretty much included in smart fascism, specifically calling yourself an eco-fascist would imply that you care more than other smart fascists, and that is simply not the case for me. I care for the environment just as much as any reasonable fascist cares for it, and that means a lot. That is why I do not see the need to classify myself an eco-fascist.

Another reason for that is that a lot of people go to far when it comes to helping the environment and hold back technological and industrial progress with their ignorance towards the fact that only a modern state will be successful compared to other countries. Technology is nothing bad and we should embrace it just like nature, but that is where a lot of self-claimed eco-fascist go in the wrong direction.

On commitment to fascism

Ok, so you realize that fascism is the superior political ideology, but what can you, or better yet, what should you do for it? How much commitment should you show?

The answer cannot be the same for everyone, but everyone should do something in the real world, such as putting up stickers and posters or going to demonstrations, even if the points of the demonstrations are not as radically different to our current situation as yours.

Put your face out there and show everyone how fascists can look like! Never apologize and never lie! Tell everyone what your real opinions are, as long as they do not affect you and your family too much. If you do not think that you can keep your job or something else that is very important to you, then spread less-radical aspects of ethnic fascism. You do not have to tell anyone that you are a fascist, but never lie. If someone asks you something like "Are you a fascist?", tell them that you are not going to answer a question like that. The only exception to lying is when you must answer, either because the pressure is just too much or because law enforcement asks you.

On fanaticism

There are three different definitions of fanaticism which are common to me.

The first one states that fanaticism is undying loyalty and devotion for something. If you want to define it like that, then fanaticism towards something such as ethnic fascism is good.

The second one states that fanaticism in its roots is the refusal to adapt to new means in a changing environment. Fanatics cannot change their opinion on the subject they are fanatic about, they are ignorant. If you define it like that, fanaticism is always bad.

The third one, which is the most common one, states that fanaticism is too much devotion towards something. If you define it like that, fanaticism is also always bad. You could argue that you cannot have too much devotion towards something as ethnic fascism. But why would you call yourself a fanatic then, if you cannot have too much devotion towards ethnic fascism.

Because the most common definition states that fanaticism is bad, it would be stupid to call yourself or the movement you are in fanatic. We do not gain anything from it, it would only hurt us.

I personally think the second definition makes the most sense, and therefore I do not see myself as a fanatic.

On tactics for political activism

Tactics for political activism should always try to convert as many people to your ideology or try to change something. There is no need for revenge or other actions that are based on emotions.

On national socialism

National socialism is the best form of fascism the world has ever seen, but because it is extremely unpopular it would not be sufficient to title ourselves as national socialists. Yes, we should expose the lies about national socialism but let us not title ourselves as national socialists. If we call ourselves ethnic fascists, we support pretty much the same things the national socialists did, but we will be a bit less controversial.

I personally do not see myself as a national socialist because the politics of national socialism are fixed and mine are a bit different but completely compatible with fascism. I would also not know enough about national socialism to call myself a national socialist. Still, I see national socialists as one of our greatest allies. I support them, if they are the right kind of national socialists, as much as any other fascist group.

Anyone that calls national socialism a leftist or socialist ideology is an idiot. National socialism is not left wing and not right wing, it is third position. And the socialist part of national socialism is completely different to modern socialism. Rather than giving money to the lazy, you give money and physical things such as food and warm clothes to families with many kids, people with no food, people who have to freeze at night and other people who really deserve it. People who try to exploit the system would not get enough support to make it worth it. The socialist part in national socialism is actually good and the assumption that socialism is always bad is wrong.

And by the way, do not use the word "Nazi". It is an insult rather than a real term.

On Judaism and Jews

Like any other religion, literal Judaism is just another ideology people believe in in order to be comforted. But unlike other religions, a Jew is not someone who believes in Judaism. Rather, they are only Jews if their mother is Jewish. Jews also act in a tribe. They are the root of most evil and degeneration of our societies. According to Judaism, Jews are the masters of everyone else and goyim, so non-Jews, are only there to serve Jews. That is why they try to subvert societies in such a way that Jews will eventually run the world.

Some facts about Jews are:

- Jews are very greedy
- Jews run most media and financial institutions
- Jews are the cause of most current and past large wars
- Jews support degeneracy to destroy white societies
- Jews promote racial division in general and the eradication of whites and all other non-Jews
- The holocaust as said is mathematically impossible
- Jews hate Germans more than any other race and tried to destroy Germany numerous times

It is very useful to know if a person is Jewish. Then you can understand his motives better. You can recognize a Jew quite easily because they mostly all share the same features. The two most noticeable features amongst Jews are:

- A big hooknose
- Most have brown eyes and brown hair
- Most men have curly brown hair

This great video by Evalion goes deeper into how to spot a Jew.

On war, militarism and interventionism

War is not good, but you should destroy any threats to your people, even with military. Militarism is good, but only so much that your people know that they are safe against any foreign invasion or internal revolution and that other countries know that they should not play with you, because you have a powerful military. Marching and military parades should also be sustained because in the countries in which it is a tradition.

A state should only intervene in other countries with military action if they are threatening you or another country which is a friend of yours.

On friendship

Every human needs at least one friend to be happy in life. Your wife will most likely also count as a friend. Without friends, you have no one to share your thoughts, problems, current situations with your life, ideas, et cetera with. That would make you lonely and therefore unhappy.

On love

While you can live longer without love than without love, it is still mandatory to a happy life. It is like a friendship, but the difference is that you enjoy sexual activities with your wife or your man, live your life together and have children together.

Some people say that you can never trust a woman, but that is wrong. Of course, you cannot trust any random girlfriend, but you must fully trust the woman you want to love the rest for your life. Otherwise, it is not real love. In real love, you should be able to fully rely on your wife without having to fear a thing.

By the way, when I say wife, I mean the woman you are together with and plan to be together for the rest of your life, married or not.

On marriage

Because marriage is a religious thing and I do not support religion, I also do not support marriage. But if you get married because it is a tradition either in your society or in your family, I am totally fine with that. But for me personally, the traditional aspect is too little to convince me to marry.

On what relationships you should enter

You should only enter a relationship if you see a good change that the other person will be your partner for the rest of your life, because I think that should be the only purpose of the relationships you enter. Do not enter relationships for the sole purpose of sex, it will not make you happy and you will only gain temporary pleasure from it. You should always be able to trust your partner and rely on her/him. Make sure to stay out of destructive, manipulative or toxic relationships and you will be fine. A relationship should always have the goal of being permanent.

The only exception to the above things is if you try to improve your game with women by approaching and talking to them.

On sex before marriage

I do not see a problem in sex before marriage because I see marriage just as a religious tradition. But you should only have sex if the other person is your partner and you there is a real change that you will be together with the other person for the rest of your life.

On whom you should date

Firstly, let us talk about circumstances under which you should probably not enter a relationship with someone. Those may be:

- The other person is a slut and was the girlfriend of many dudes or had a lot of casual sex
- Your political ideologies differ too much
- The other person is self-hating, self-destructive, manipulative or emotionally abusing
- You do not know if you can trust the other person

- You think that the other person would use you for money or other things
- The other person has race-mixed children
- The other person is very unhealthy
- The other person is a Jew or a degenerate
- The other person is addicted to something

Now let us talk about good circumstances under which you should definitely keep an eye on the other person:

- The other person educates herself/himself
- The other person is healthy and exercises a lot
- The other person can hold an interesting conversation
- The other person cares about appearance but does not care what the masses think of her/him

On traitors

While there are many evil things humans can do, betrayal is the worst kind of evil. Normally, if you do something evil, people will not be super surprised. But if you betray someone, you shock the ones who liked you and trusted you. You use their trust to your advantage, and that is very evil.

But, as always, exceptions exist. If someone for example used you or supported the enemies of ethnic fascism, you can betray him. In most cases, if you want to disconnect with someone you should tell him the truth in a serious conversation.

On loneliness

Often times you will be lonely. The chances are even greater when you are different from the rest. It is an art to continue doing the right thing when you have no real friends and no woman. When you are in this kind of situation, you must tell yourself that this is only a temporary phase. When you fight your way through life, you will have friends and a woman one day. Think about your life and what you imagine your life to be in the future and then ask yourself: Is it really that bad?

On depression

Sometimes you are not able to overcome the challenges of life yourself. If that is the case, you must seek help. It does not have to be a therapist, even though I really recommend going to one if you are seriously depressed. People on the internet can be great talking partners. They do not know you and therefore you will be able to have an open and honest conversation in most cases. On platforms like Discord, you can find a huge number of supportive people and even servers who are dedicated to depression.

Always remember: You are not alone! There are millions of people who break under the societies we live in. The only thing you should care about is getting out of that phase and your future.

On tradition

Tradition honors your ancestors and is a healthy thing that remembers you of you are and where your origins are. I support practicing it in a spiritual way to have fun, honor your ancestors and get motivation.

On culture

Culture is an important thing because you are only a part of a folk if you share their genetics AND culture. You can't just live somewhere else for your entire life and then claim you are a German because you share their genetics, but you also can't claim to be a real German if you lived in their land for your whole life but don't share genetics.

On identity

I consider knowing your identity to be even more important than tradition. It teaches you where you come from and how many honorable warriors, intellectuals and extremely determined people fought for your people. It makes it very clear, that you have a duty to your race. And after being thought to embrace your identity, you will most likely do far more for your race than just putting some stickers up.

On the identitarian movement

Embracing your identity is one of the main goals of the identitarian movement. They understood how important it is and are making a lot of progress, even though many members of them are still libertarian cuckservatives.

I personally heard from a member of the identitarian movement that some of the leading figures in the identitarian movement are indeed whitepilled and woke on things like the Jewish question. But in order to gain new members and not look like an extremist movement, which they are not, they do not speak about this. You can see that this tactic is working. While other nationalist movements did not get far because of demonetization and a media mob that titled them as “just another group of evil Nazis full of hatred”, the identitarian movement is able to sustain a big part of its online presence and attract many young and motivated people.

But this has not got unnoticed. As of the time I am writing this, the mass media in Austria is making a huge attempt to destroy the Austrian identitarian movement (IBÖ). Even our cuckservative chancellor Sebastian Kurz (ÖVP) titled them “disgusting”. As a result of massive pressure, even the far-right party of Austria (FPÖ) had to distance themselves from the IBÖ, despite sharing very similar goals.

On modernism

Modernism is a very important part of a fascist state.

Modernism advocates rational thinking and the use of science and reason for the advancement of man. The modernist era, which took place in the late 1800s and early 1900s, was characterized by the simple and elegant original works of gifted artists. Modernists also believe in universal truth.

Modernism seeks to improve men, society and state. It also provides concepts for the ideal forms of those. The 3rd Reich was notorious for being very modern, and this led to it begin the most advanced society in the world. But modernism does not mean that you cannot practice traditionalism, which was also shown by the 3rd Reich. In fact, they are not even comparable because they are not in the same category. The opposite to modernism would be primitivism.

It is very important to not confuse modernism with postmodernism. Both are very different and share only very little.

On postmodernism

Postmodernism is best described as multiple degenerate ideologies that evolved and are still evolving from the downfall of decent civilizations.

Postmodernism is disgusting, evil, wrong and ugly. And the worst part is that the people who participate in it take pride in their disgusting activities, evil programs for children, wrong philosophy and ugly art.

All in all, postmodernism is a symptom of a fallen society that needs to be eradicated.

On degeneracy

Degeneracy is simply moral decay that happens when societies start moving in the wrong direction. Because there is not much you can say about it, I am just going to name a few degenerate things that we are starting to see a lot more often:

- Submissiveness of woman
- Desire to have sexual intercourse with a person from a different race
- Homosexuality
- Masturbation
- Edgy fandoms such as those of furies and brownies
- Marxism, communism, libertarianism, capitalism, modern socialism, ...
- Individualism
- Racism and sexism (by correct definition)
- Fanatism (by 2nd and 3rd definition)

On people who follow the system

When I say people who follow the system, I mean those who follow the crowd and live life as they are supposed to by the state: Be a nice citizen, make the government money and never leave this delusion of a meaningful life and freedom.

Sadly, most people do not realize that our society is designed in such a way to keep us down. Those who believe everything the media and the society tells them are called NPCs. We are supposed to live life according to a schedule. We are born, get indoctrinated as early as kindergarten, learn how to be another lemming, then enter the job industry and the catastrophic system of capitalism and maybe have one or two kids until we finally retire.

Education is just there to teach people how to later live a sad and worthless life as one out of thousands. It indoctrinates people and teaches them the opposite of truth. This disinformation and wrongness that is taught in school is getting worse and worse. Today young students are taught that mental disabilities such as homosexuality are fine, that it is totally okay to live the unhealthy and very dangerous life that comes with obesity and one of the vilest things school education leads to is early-sexualization. This makes out of innocent teenagers and even children sluts, whores and proles.

The lemming career is dependent and often includes wage-slavery.

We are not supposed to openly talk about the agenda of the state and how they use us to their benefit. If we do, we lose a job. We can observe this very good through looking at how different countries make people lose their job or lock them away because of totally different statements. In a liberal country like Sweden, you get fired from your job when you question immigration and tell some statistic about crime rates. On the other hand, in states such as North Korea you are locked away if you question the military, something you would normally be praised for in Sweden.

To the people who see all this: You are not better than the rest if you live like the rest. Of course, you cannot simply escape society, paying taxes, et cetera. But you can speak out against the bad and for the good, even if you will face consequences. You can also look for a wonderful woman, have many children, learn about philosophy, fascism and many more. Always try to be the best version of yourself and live your life the best way the government allows. If you do that, you have my greatest honor.

On immigration

Immigration is the latest attempt of the elite and the enemies of the western world to ruin our societies. Instead of trying to convince the general public to serve them, they just bring in extremely dumb and easy to indoctrinate people to us. This does not only make our lives worse, through crime, rape, murder, free money and housing for immigrants, it also destroys and replaces our culture and our people.

This phenomenon is called the great replacement and is the biggest problem of the white race we currently have. If we continue to breed less and bring in more immigrants, even if they are from other western countries, the people and the culture will be forever lost in a few decades. This is the main point of Brenton Tarrant's manifest and what made him commit the New Zealand mosque shootings. And while he was a strong and brave warrior fighting for his race, he took the wrong approach. Killing a few Muslims will lead to exactly what he wanted: Racial tension. The problem is that the Muslims are not our enemies. It is very clear that refugees will rape and murder in our countries, and that is why his target should have been the ones who are responsible for letting those refugees in.

Racial tension between Muslims and Westerners is what the Jew wants! This way he will make the Western countries even weaker through the ongoing civil war, which is the end goal the accelerationism between white people and Muslims.

I believe that we should only allow for a very tiny amount of immigration for things like science or very special jobs and that those immigrants should not be allowed to breed in that country or have a relationship with someone from that country.

On my favorite personality

The personality test from 16Personalities is a great way to determine what personality you have. I personally am INTJ, and that did not surprise me.

I do not call this "On the ideal personality", because I think that is categorizing too much.

My favorite personality type would be ENTJ, because they can usually gather more support and lead better than INTJ-people, while still sharing most personality characteristics.

On art

I believe that art is not only a very healthy and good activity, it is almost essential for the individual a society.

It creates ideals, is humorous and is a relaxing activity.

Nietzsche once said, "Without music, life would be a mistake." And without the music in our hearts called "art", that is not only musical, but also graphical, social and beautiful, life would indeed be a mistake.

I personally would have a much more boring life without music, my preferred form of art.

On abortion

I am pro-abortion if the parents are liberals or not white. Rather have less children now than more liberals in the future. When we have a fascist state and people are not degenerates, abortion will eventually be banned, but right now it is not beneficial to us.

And yes, abortion is murder, but murder is not always bad.

The people who are pro-life now cause the birth of more babies who will probably turn out to be liberal degenerates who ruin society even more.

On the ego

Egos are completely unnecessary and should be abandoned, although that is only theoretically possible.

Friedrich Nietzsche once said, "Whenever I climb, I am followed by a dog called ego." What he meant was that caring about your ego is irrationality and human arrogance. There is absolutely no reason to care about what someone thinks of you if it does not affect you in any other way.

On coincidence

I do not believe in such a thing such as coincidence. That means that I believe everything in life is pre-determined and nothing is random. That is not because I believe in some sort of god, but because I think that the only things determining reality are the laws of nature and matter.

We as humans were never able to create for example random numbers. The best we can do is throw a seed into an algorithm and pretend like it is a random number.

On racism

If racism is good depends on definition.

If you go by the, in my opinion right, definition that says that racism is either discrimination or abusive behavior towards members of another race, then racism is bad.

If you go by the definition that says that racism is the belief that each race has distinct and intrinsic attributes, then racism is truth and therefore good.

If you go by the definition that says that racism is the belief that a race is superior to others, racism is an opinion and cannot be translated into good or bad.

I think the first definition makes the most sense, and therefore I do not see myself as a racist.

On xenophobia

If we define xenophobia as a fear of strangers or foreigners, it depends. I am definitely xenophobic of the cultures which want to ruin us, but I think you cannot generally say if someone is xenophobic or not.

On islamophobia

I do not treat Islam different than any other religion. Of course, I do not like it, but I also do not see it as a problem for us. Yes, Muslims from outside of the western world should never settle into the western world, but that has nothing to do with Islam, only with their decent and behavior.

Yes, the Quran teaches Muslims to kill non-Muslims, but Christianity also tells you to kill people, even your own family, if they try to convince you to believe in another god (Deuteronomy 13:6-10). That is why I do not like any religion, but I do not have more problems with Islam than for example Christianity.

If I met a fascist Muslim, I would still see him as my brother and fight alongside with him.

I do not consider myself an islamophobe.

On bigotry

Bigotry, so intolerance and/or prejudice something against something, is not only right, but necessary to maintain a healthy society. Without intolerance towards degeneracy, we would fail as a society.

But again, you cannot say if you are generally a bigot.

On sexism

Sexism is wrong, that is very simple. Discriminating or being abusive towards the opposite sex is going to damage us as a society and sexists are betas who need to release their anger towards random people from the opposite sex because they feel so disappointed with their own life.

Elliot Rodger is a perfect example of a sexist beta. He thought women were the enemy of mankind and evil just because college sluts never approached him. Yes, most modern women are obnoxious sluts who deserve to be discriminated, but that is not sexism. You can hate sluts as much as you want, but never generalize this and feel hatred towards the whole female sex.

And do not fall for modern interpretations of this word. Sexism is not embracing the housewife, wanting that woman should not be allowed to work, et cetera. Most things postmodern NPCs call sexist are actually the opposite and would benefit women. What is actually sexist is advocating for a independent feminist woman who is not reliant on a man, because this is what will actually damage women, men and the relationship between those.

I do not consider myself a sexist.

On homophobia

Homophobia is good as long as it will actually help to remove the degeneracy of homosexuality. Hating faggots is natural if you are against the destruction of society but be rational and only do things that will not help the faggots.

For example: Beating up faggots in the streets will not do us any good, but rather help faggots with portraying themselves as victims. But standing up to this degeneracy and calling out the people who normalize homosexuality amongst society, particularly children, will be beneficial and very based.

I consider myself a homophobe.

On tolerance

We should be tolerant towards slightly different opinions because fighting over small things will only divide us. We can have debates and discussions, but if our main causes are the same, we should be tolerant to each other.

But we should not tolerate any form of degeneracy that might occur in within our people or generally society. Because if we do, it will eventually be perceived as normal and we definitely do not want that.

On accelerationism

Acceleration is something I myself am not sure if it is a good tactic. But what I can definitely say is that if we decide to accelerate the destruction of our societies to eventually have a revolt, we must always make sure that people who usually would not have joined us wake up and decide to join us.

On conservatism

If we define Conservatism as the inclination to maintain the existing or traditional order, I am definitely against conservatism. In order to make great empires and societies that are worthy for us, we must be progressively changing our current systems. And I do not mean liberal progression.

This “traditional order” by the way, has nothing to do with cultural tradition. Someone who wants to act and preserve cultural tradition is called a traditionalist, and I greatly support that and am a traditionalist myself.

Most conservatives are cuckold boomers who still believe that their capitalism and ignorance to other systems are the “future”. We can surely see how that went. Our societies are degenerate sums of people where you do not even want to be a collectivist anymore and some of the most popular conservatives are gay (Milo Yiannopoulos, Jewish (Ben Shapiro) and literally SJW’s (Laura Loomer).

On self-determination

Self-determination is healthy to an extent and would be 100% healthy if all people and the society they live in were smart.

People should be allowed to do what they want to do, as long as it is compliant with the laws. But that does not mean that everyone will end up focusing only on themselves. Self-determination also means that you can choose to serve your people and pursue other based meanings. In fact, this will be the outcome of a state that has managed to convert most people to the truth. This means that in a healthy society, people will find of their determination in the truth and serve their people while also being able to choose other aspects of live by themselves.

But this is all theoretical, let us talk about what the state should do if the people would find their determination in individualism and degeneracy. If this was the case, the state should force those people to serve their people and try to show them the true meanings and determinations of life. In contrast, you should be self-determined in societies such as those we live in today because the state will only tell you lies about life and what your determination should be.

On morality

Morality is based on the belief that we can distinguish between good and evil, but we cannot. Good and evil are both non-existing, a myth brought up by humans. Therefore, morality is but a human invention, an illusion. Nothing is good or evil. It just is.

A popular argument is that morality exists because if there was no morality, there would be nothing stopping us from committing horrible crimes such as murder in order to create benefits for ourselves. But even if that were true and it would, according to theists, be “better”, that would still not make morality real. And while that is true for individualists, it is a flawed argument considering collectivism. As a collectivist I see myself as a part of those who I also consider part of my collective. That means, I would only commit murder if it would profit either me or my people. I would not kill any of my people, I would also not commit murder if there was a chance of things turning out to have a negative impact on me or my people, which is the case with pretty much all of murder, except if the possible positive outcome overwhelmingly exceeds the possible negative outcome and I would also not commit murder against friends and allies, except if they were to suddenly turn against me or my people, because I see friendship and solidarity as one of the most important things in the entire life. And while I would prefer justice and happiness around the whole world, I would absolutely commit murder against people whom I do not care about if it were to profit my people.

The things I just wrote certainly show that I do not believe in the moral concept that murder is bad, and this proves that there is no objective morality that would hold me back from such act. And yes, if there were nothing else to it, that would be utterly stupid and would negatively affect the people around me. But since I am a collectivist, I do not need morality and I see nothing in this that would negatively affect me or my people.

People often like to call me and other atheists immoral. But while I certainly am immoral, this does not apply to all atheists. There is still a huge number of atheists who, to their misfortune, believe in morality.
